YACHT CLUB DANCE

In the neighborhood of seventy-five people enjoyed the dance of the Hawaii Yacht Club in the pavilion at the Peninsula Saturday night. The club house not being ready for occupancy. The occasion was most delightful in every respect and should have drawn a much larger number of people. The pavilion was beautifully decorated with flags and pennants and the yacht club members with their wives, dressed in yachting costume, added a decidedly picturesque touch. Refreshments were served during the evening. The Ella stringed instrument club furnished the most delightful music.

A special train carrying people from the city, left the depot at about 8 o'clock and returned from the Peninsula at 11:30, arriving in town a little after midnight. Two electric cars carried the people to their homes along the King and Wilder Avenue routes.

During one of the intervals at the dance Saturday night, the cups won during the season were presented to the winners by Commodore Macfarlane, Allan Dunn reading out the names of the winners and the boats. The list is as follows:

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT SPRECKELSVILLE MILL

Waikuku, Aug. 8.—There has perhaps never been a more brilliant, elaborate and successful reception given on Maui than that which was held at Punahele on last Saturday evening to celebrate the close of the grinding season. The management of each department of the affair was in competent hands, and no thought, care or expense were spared to make the occasion a thoroughly delightful and successful one.

A full orchestra from Berger's band arrived on Friday night's Mauna Loa. Trains were run from all points to Punahele and brought crowds of people, besides those who came in private carriages, the full attendance being in the neighborhood of five hundred guests. The mud press room had been fitted up as a ball room and was beautifully decorated with flags, evergreens and flowers. The orchestra was seated on an upper balcony and the dance room was filled with dancing couples, principally in full dress, eliciting the comment from several that the function was a peer of those given by the late King Kalakaua, during the palmy days of the monarchy. A striking feature of the decorations was a handsomely wrought design in greenery and beautiful flowers containing the figures "1902" and "37,000," which told their own story.

At 8 o'clock sharp the grand march began, led by Hon. H. P. Baldwin and Mrs. J. N. S. Williams. At the conclusion of the grand march the procession broke into clusters for the lanterns, and a delightful program of dances followed till midnight. At 11, supper was announced, and when the guests proceeded to the upper floor where the supper was laid, a fairy-like scene was revealed. A choice menu of viands were spread on a table which extended the entire length of the room along one side while opposite were seats for the guests who were served by scores of busy waiters under the management of Caterer Mayfield, who was highly complimented for the excellent supper and service. The supper room was also beautifully and lavishly decorated with evergreens and flowers through which shone many colored electric lights with soft and beautiful effect.

After midnight the trains conveyed the local people to their different stations, and the Honolulu guests to Kahului, where the Claudine lay, awaiting their arrival.—Maui News.
